Centennial Year Worship: Congregational singing has always been an important part of worship at First CRC. As we enter our centennial year, we will include a hymn of the month during our traditional service (8:30 am) to give us a taste of our worshipping church through the decades.

We'll begin with 3 months of psalms, since in the early years we only sang psalms, first in Dutch and then in English after the denomination published a hymnal with English translations of the psalms (1934 Psalter Hymnal). In April, as part of our Easter celebrations, we'll sing "Glory to God/Ehre Sei Gott in English and in Dutch.

In the following 3 months, we'll sing favorites that were added to our hymnals as the Christian Reformed Church became less Dutch and culturally isolated, and more like the Protestant churches around us.

In the months after our celebration in September, which will include many of our favorite hymns, we'll also sing some of our favorite praise songs that have now become an important part of our church's worship.

What we sing in worship truly says who we are- a body of believers who glorify God.

Centennial Update: Sunday services will include the first in a series of Centennial Videos that will lead up to our Centennial Celebration weekend on September 9 and 10. Thanks to all who participated in filming interviews and volunteering to help with the voice overs. Although the production company has not utilized all the interviews and volunteer voices, the overwhelming cooperation of so many in the congregation in submitting voice samples and interviews has made this project a success.
